DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because of the inclusion of legal phraseology such as "comprising". Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

With respect to claim 1, the recitation of "preferably between 90 and 250 g/m²" is found to be vague and indefinite because it improperly presents a range within a previously recited range within the same claim and thus, the actual limitation is unclear.

With respect to claim 7, this claim is found to be vague and indefinite because it recites a limitation of "rubber" within the previously recited "adhesive" and thus the scope of the claim is unclear.

With respect to claim 9, this claim is found to be vague and indefinite for improperly presenting a range within a range as described above with respect to claim 1.

With respect to claims 12 and 13, the recitation of "possibly being modified" is found to be vague and indefinite because it is unclear as to what "modifications" are being referred to and whether or not such are required.

Art Unit: 1744

With respect to claim 17, this claim is found to be vague and indefinite because initial dependency is set forth as to claim 12, however further improper dependency is recited at the end of the claim to claims 4-8. It is further noted that the limitation refers to a cohesion agent, however, in previous claims rubber has been recited so the connection therebetween is unclear.

With respect to claims 18 and 21, these claims are found to be vague and indefinite because of recitations referring to "it", however, it is unclear as to what "it" is.

Claim 19 is improper as it appears to lack any further limitation, but is merely reciting that which has already been claimed.

With respect to claim 20, "the greater bacterial filtering efficiency" lacks proper antecedent basis because such differentiation was presented in claim 11, not in the claims from which claim 20 depends.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.

Art Unit: 1744

4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over any one of Anthony et al., U.S. patent No. 4,714,595 or Shimoyamada et al., U.S. patent No. 4,724,961 or Markle et al., U.S. patent No. 5,246,109 or Anderson et al., U.S. patent No. 5,418,022.

All of the recited patents teach the known and expected formation of sterilization bags and rigid containers with a material formed from cellulose fibers and synthetic fibers adhered with adhesive in varying arrays of bonding, such material having a bacterial filtration efficiency.

The references are silent as to the specific standard strengths of the material, however, such standards are well recognized as conventional in the art and in fact, are referred to by Markle et al., for instance (see column 1, lines 30-40).

Art Unit: 1744

It would have been well within the purview of one of ordinary skill in the art to form and configure the materials of the patents set forth above so as to optimize the strength and bacterial efficiency thereof.
